Northern Hemisphere University Programs growth continues

Global education services provider Navitas Limited (ASX: NVT) has today announced student enrolments of 4,926 equivalent full time student unit (EFTSU) enrolments for the first semester of 2013 (201301) for its northern hemisphere University Programs colleges.

This is an overall increase in EFTSU enrolments of 19% against the prior corresponding period (pcp) for the northern hemisphere colleges.

The northern hemisphere region includes all colleges in the US, UK and Canada. Due to different semester commencement dates in this region these enrolment numbers are being released today while 201301 enrolments for southern hemisphere colleges (including Singapore and Sri Lanka), and the whole division, will be released in early April once finalised.

The US network of colleges, while still in their early development stage, grew EFTSU by 82% compared to pcp with new enrolments more than offsetting lower than normal retention rates due to a material number of single semester pre-masters units in prior semesters.

EFTSU growth in the two Canadian colleges grew by 13% with a generally higher average course load reducing the impacts of a slowing new enrolment rate.

Navitas' eight UK colleges grew EFTSU by 12% compared to pcp, continuing the growth trend demonstrated in 201203 following several years of enrolment declines due to the changing regulatory environment.

"We are very pleased to report continued enrolment growth across all Northern hemisphere regions," said Navitas Chief Executive Officer, Rod Jones.

"The US continues to improve as the colleges get more established, the UK has maintained its bounce back and Canada settles into its new, more moderated growth pattern."
